

A HOST OF HOSTAGES — Out for a breath of air, apparently, are some of the hostages held by Palestine guerrillas at an airstrip in the Amman, Jordan, area.

Guerrillas Balk As Arab Front Asks For Hostages

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Moderate leaders of the Palestine guerrillas tried today to take over more than 280 hostages held at a desert airstrip in Jordan, but the hijackers holding the passengers, crewmen and three airliners balked at turning them over immediately. The Central Committee of the Palestine Liberation Organization announced that it had decided to move the hostages to Amman for humanitarian reasons. It said they would "remain in its charge and protection" until their fate was decided.

Andre Rocha, the International Red Cross representative who has been negotiating for release of the hostages, told newsmen all of them would be brought to the Jordanian capital. "We will announce our position later today," said an official of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, the extremist group whose members hijacked the three jetliners earlier this week and which has frequently flouted orders from the Central Committee. "The passengers won't be moved anywhere until the Popular Front decides to move them," said a spokesman for the group in Beirut.

He added that the Palestine Liberation Organization could not speak for the Popular Front. Political sources in London reported 'ha' representatives of the United States, Britain, West Germany, Switzerland and Israel decided at a meeting in Bern not to accept the guerrillas' offer to release all non-Israeli passengers and crews of the planes in exchange for seven commandos held in Britain, West Germany and Switzerland.

The sources said the five-nation group formulated a counterproposal which was sent to Rocha.

The contents of the counterproposal were not known. But earlier the Western nations had instructed Rocha to offer an exchange of all the hostages and

Surgeon General Raps 'Glamour'

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The nation's chief health officer says cigarette smoking is a kind of self-destruction and urges movies, television and the stage to quit giving it "glamour appeal" for the young.

"The time is ripe for government and voluntary groups to mount a more vigorous program on all fronts to portray smoking as what it really is—a dirty, smelly, awful, chronic form of suicide," Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld said Thursday.

He told the first National Conference on Smoking and Health that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Veterans Administration and the Department of Defense have adopted a new policy on smoking in federal hospitals.

"Under this policy we are restricting the sale of cigarettes to canteens, eliminating free distribution of cigarettes, limiting smoking areas and strengthening our educational efforts to both staff and patients," Steinfeld said.

HEW and other government agencies want to encourage smokers to quit, he said, and nonsmokers, particularly the young, not to start.

"One thing we can be sure of," Steinfeld said, "is that when we discourage cigarette smoking among our youth we are not driving them to smoke marijuana or take up other drugs."

Evidence currently available, he added, points to the opposite conclusion.

Steinfeld said Hollywood is partly responsible, together with the advertising business, for the fact that smoking has become an integral part of the American social scene.

"How often in the movies have we seen a cigarette held to the lips of a dying man?" he asked. "Cigarettes have also become useful as a bit of stage business, lighting up or crushing them out being used to underscore an actor's mood."

He suggested motion pictures, television and theater use cigarettes less frequently in dramatic situations to "lessen their glamour appeal particularly to impressionable youth."

Israel Reports Missile Buildup

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel charged today that Egypt has now moved Soviet SAM3 anti-aircraft missiles into the military standstill zone west of the Suez Canal.

The SAM3s are believed to be manned by Soviet crews.

The SAM3 missiles are designed to strike low-flying aircraft. They would complement the SAM2 missiles, already in the canal zone, which are aimed at high-flying planes. These are believed manned by Egyptians.

The military command here said the Israeli complaint was based on information received Thursday. It was submitted to the U.N. truce supervision organization in Jerusalem.

It was the 13th Israeli complaint of alleged violations since the cease-fire and military standstill took effect five weeks ago.

The Israelis also charged construction and preparation of missile sites was continuing in the standstill area.

The Arab guerrillas announced a new peace agreement with the Jordanian government Thursday, and the fighting in Amman subsided.

Judge Decides To Rule On War's Legality

Time To Stop Ducking Issue, Magistrate Says

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal judge says he has decided to rule on the constitutionality of the Vietnam war because he believes it is time the courts stopped avoiding the issue.

Judge William Schweigert made the statement in U.S. District Court Thursday in refusing to dismiss a lawsuit filed by four University of California students seeking to have the war declared illegal and unconstitutional.

Sweigert said the U. S. Supreme Court has been "resourcefully ducking" the issue on the grounds it is "political" and a question of "sovereign immunity."

He said that although the war was never declared by Congress, President Nixon and former presidents "continued, nevertheless, to conduct the war without receiving or even requesting a congressional declaration."

The question of whether the Constitution says the power to declare war lies with Congress and not the president "should rest upon something better than the ambivalences of congressional inaction," Schweigert said.

"The Supreme Court has demonstrated its resourcefulness in finding ways and means of eliminating or minimizing undesirable, practical consequences that might otherwise follow major decisions charting new requirements in the field of constitutional law" in connection with the Vietnam war, he declared.

The judge said he would withhold a decision until government attorneys have filed an answer to his denial of their motion to dismiss the suit by Garry F. Mooles, 23, James R. Schwarz, 23, Irving M. Gross, 22, and Roy Olson, 24, all of Berkeley.

Sweigert reviewed various arguments proposed to justify U.S. action in Vietnam, such as self-defense and treaty obligations, and said those arguments "merely purport to explain why, for various reasons of expediency, the Constitution has not been complied with."

Fire Levels Barns

URBANA, Ohio (AP) — A fire destroyed three barns worth an estimated $100,000 Thursday on the farm of Robert Pogue in Champaign County. Officials are investigating the possibility of arson.

The guerrillas said both sides had agreed "to remove the causes" of clashes that had been going on in Amman for three days. This seemed to indicate a government capitulation to the guerrillas, since it is the guerrillas who have been setting conditions under which the fighting might end.

Even this was no assurance that the agreement would last. A similar pact was announced Tuesday, but it broke down and the fighting resumed before the day was over.

Soon after Amman Radio broadcast the news of the latest agreement, the Jordanian capital gradually began to come alive again. Thousands of persons who had spent the previous 24 hours in basements to avoid the shells and bullets began to come out.

But sporadic shooting could still be heard hours afterward, and shops and bazaars remained closed. Guerrillas continued to man road blocks in various parts of the city.

At least 30 civilians were killed in the fighting Wednesday, unofficial sources in Amman said. The guerrillas say 40 commandos were killed the previous day.

Earlier Thursday the Palestinians demanded that King Hussein "purge the royal palace, the army and the government" of enemies of the com-

Bankers Doubt Prime Interest Rate Will Drop

NEW YORK (AP) — Bankers across the country are expressing skepticism about the possibility of a substantial drop in interest rates in the near future.

A survey of large and small banks shows them to be at odds with Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans who predicted a sharp drop in interest rates.

"I think we will see a 6 per cent interest rate, and perhaps not far off," Stans said in a radio interview last week.

Bank officials citing the high cost of money, overhead and continued high demand for loans, say they do not expect the prime rate—the interest charged to large customers—to decline sharply.

The effect of a drop in the prime rate, now at 8 per cent, would be to make it easier for large corporate borrowers to get loans. This would have the effect of stimulating the economy and cutting unemployment through the creation of new jobs, economists say.

"It may look good politically, but how can you lend money at 6 per cent when you're buying it at 8?" said George Scott, chairman of the First National City Bank's credit policy committee — the group that sets the New York bank's prime rate.

The big New York banks are a big factor in any movement in the interest rate, and all say they have no plans at the moment for a cut.

Many bankers surveyed said that they usually follow the trend set by the large New York banks.

"Cincinnati banks move as do the major banks in other cities such as Chicago and New York," said an official of the First National Bank, Cincinnati's largest.

"I think there'll be pressure during the election campaign to drop the prime rate, but I don't see how we can fight inflation

Agnew Hits Disorders In Nation

CASPER, Wyo. (AP) — President Nixon sent Vice President Spiro T. Agnew out on the Republican campaign circuit with a word of advice: Stress the issue of disorder in the streets and campuses because Americans don't want "a bunch of radicals" using violence as a path to power.

Disclosing this at political rallies in Illinois and Wyoming Thursday, Agnew said:

"The issue is whether a free people operating under a free and representative system of government will continue to govern the United States, or whether they will cede that power to some of the people, the irresponsible people, the law-breakers on the streets and campuses and their followers, their sycophants, and the people who subscribe to their activities behind the scenes, the radical liberals."

So, denouncing "the radicals" in a newly coined name for the faction he said has taken control of the Democratic party, Agnew heads today for San Diego to urge support for the reelection of Republican Sen. George Murphy of California.

In Casper, Agnew plugged for votes for Rep. John Wold, challenging Wyoming's Democratic Sen. Gale W. McGee; in Springfield, Ill., he did his bit for Sen. Ralph T. Smith, who faces a difficult contest against Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson III, state treasurer.

Recalling his White House sendoff Thursday, Agnew said he and the President discussed radical violence and its campaign impact, relating:

"... and the President said to me 'That's the issue. And in my judgment the people of the United States like this free system we have. They like the idea that the people who are governing this country are to be elected and not designated by a bunch of radicals in the streets or in the campuses, and that's the way they want to keep it.'"

In an address to some 3,500 people at a rally as the Casper Fairgrounds Agnew said "radical congressmen... have begun a mad scramble to the center" because they found their views at variance with those of the voters.

Roundtown

ALL PLANS have been completed for the first Farmers Market sponsored by the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Individuals and organizations who will be selling homemade products and garden produce on the sidewalks and streets are Salem Methodist Church, Jacobs and Gentzel, Rhodes Market, Sew Straight Teenettes 4-H Club, Williamsport Methodist Church Kindergarten, Circle 4 of Good Shepherd Methodist Church, Circleville Lions Club, Goode's Nursery, Stevens Boys, Hardman and Mebs.

There will be baked goods, tomatoes, green beans, squash, carrots and other vegetables, homemade candleholders, gourds, Indian corn and hickory nuts at the market.

The hours are 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. so come early to get the best buys.

Goldwater Eyes Legal Marijuana

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., says in some ways cigarettes are worse than marijuana and "I lean toward legalizing it."

Goldwater made his comment at a news conference Thursday. He came here to address a meeting of Young Conservatives.

The senator said he would like to hear more scientific evidence about the danger of marijuana but believes present penalties are too stiff for users and too light for peddlers.

Brownsville Residents Under Gun

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Hurricane Ella, its winds a severe 85 miles per hour, raced toward the Texas-Mexico coast today and residents quickly took action to counter the probable damage and danger.

The Weather Bureau forecast that Ella would hit near or a little south of Brownsville, a city of 51,000 on the Mexican border 18 miles from the Gulf of Mexico.

The hurricane speeded up during the night, moving at 20 m.p.h. about 200 miles east southeast of Brownsville. Thursday it was moving at 10 m.p.h. after crossing the tip of Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula.

Predicted rains of six inches probably would cause flooding.

Tides of 5 to 8 feet were expected in the Brownsville area and at Port Isabel, a town of 4,000 on the shore of Brownsville.

Evacuation of low areas began by dawn and a Cameron County (Brownsville) sheriff's spokesman said South Padre Island and Port Isabel were due to be empty of people by noon.

The need for protection was given emphasis by Hurricane Celia which struck the Corpus Christi area 150 miles to the north Aug. 3 with at least 13 persons killed in Texas.

Also of painful memory was Hurricane Beulah of 1967 in which the death toll was also 13. Beulah struck in about the same area at which Ella pointed.

Effect of the hurricane was predicted to reach as far north as Port Aransas, 150 miles north of Brownsville where tides were expected to be 2 to 5 feet above normal. Port Aransas was almost destroyed by Hurricane Celia.

Residents of Lower Rio Grande Valley from Brownsville north were profiting by the experience of Celia. They were buying extra gasoline, boarding up some windows and taping others.

Food stores opened early and residents began stocking up.

The Red Cross established a refugee center by 9 a.m. Government disaster centers began operation. National guardsmen were told to keep in touch with their headquarters.

Spanish language radio stations warned residents across the Rio Grande in Mexico of the storm danger.

3 Ohio GIs Killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Ohio servicemen, Army Spec. 4 William L. Wilhelm of Covington, Marine Lance Cpl. Ronald D. Swinford of Fairborn, and Army Spec. 4 Randall L. Lloyd of Sterling, have been killed in action in Southeast Asia, the Defense Department reported Thursday.

Air Force Hammers Reds Close To Laotian Border

SAIGON (AP) — For the fifth day the U.S. Air Force today flew heavy raids against North Vietnamese forces intensifying their attacks on a South Vietnamese base near the Laotian border.

Three waves of big B52 bombers dropped nearly 300 tons of bombs on bunkers, base camps and storage and staging areas within seven miles of Fire Base O'Reilly.

Other B52s hammered North Vietnamese supply depots and transshipment points on the Laotian side of the border.

Smaller U.S. fighter-bombers also kept up attacks closer to O'Reilly, trying to hit mortars, rockets and recoilless cannons that this week have pumped about 500 rounds of shells into the base and South Vietnamese patrols operating around it.

Military spokesmen said the fighter-bombers had flown more than 100 missions since Monday around the base, and that this was about 20 per cent of the Air Force's entire operation in Vietnam during that period.

South Vietnamese military headquarters said its forces with the help of American bombers had killed 530 North Vietnamese since July 1.

A spokesman said the South Vietnamese forces also had captured 157 enemy rifles, 33 heavy weapons such as mortars, and 300 mortar rounds and rocket grenades.

The spokesman said 57 South Vietnamese had been killed and 92 wounded in the operations.

O'Reilly is one of a cluster of firebases in the northwestern part of the country blocking an enemy advance from the jungled mountains near the Laotian border into the populous coastal lowlands around Hue and Quang Tri City, about 25 miles to the east.

Census Check Made On Countians

Names of 47 persons in Pickaway County who claimed they were not counted in the 1970 census will be put to the test in Washington D. C. today.

City and county leaders have been trying to locate persons who have not been counted in an effort to reach a count of 40,000. At present, census figures show 39,920 Pickaway Countians in the recent count.

The names of those who responded to the call for uncaptured residents will be matched against census data in the computers of the Bureau of Census at Suitland, Md. If all 47 are approved, there will still be a shortage of 33.

Should the goal of 40,000 be reached, Pickaway County would be entitled to additional federal aid and its officials to higher salaries.

DWI Draws $150 Fine

Zollie Gay Harper, 52, 208 N. Scioto St., was found guilty of driving while intoxicated by Circleville Municipal Court Judge Sterling Lamb today.

Harper was fined $150 and costs, sentenced to three days in the county jail and had his driver's rights suspended for six months. Harper was also fined $15 and costs for failure to heed a stop sign.

Edgar Brewster, 37, Columbus, was found guilty of a similar charge Thursday by acting Judge Allan Berger. He was fined $150 and costs, sentenced to three days in jail and had his driving rights suspended for six months.

William S. Kline, 23, Route 1, was found guilty of driving while his license was under suspension by Berger. He was fined $100 and costs, sentenced to five days in the county jail and had his driving rights suspended for one year.

Janet Giffin, Route 4, was fined $50 and costs for reckless operation. Carl Cochran Jr., 30, Ashville, was fined $15 and costs for failure to heed a stop sign.

Richard Hill, 58, 370 E. Walnut St., was fined $15 and costs for intoxication. Val Gene Ferguson, 539 E. Union St., was bound to the grand jury on a charge of non support of his three minor children. Ferguson entered a plea of innocent to the charge. Bond was set at $1,000.

Lockbourne AFB Announces Low Level Missions

Aircraft from the 121st Tactical Fighter Wing at Lockbourne Air Force Base will conduct low-level training missions during daylight hours over southeastern Ohio, Northern Kentucky, and southern Indiana.

F-4 and F-100 jet fighter aircraft will be flying over these states at low levels, but will remain at least 1000 feet above ground level at all times.

The routes to be utilized have been carefully designed to avoid all populated areas and airfields. They have been tested flown by supervisory pilots of the unit and have been selected as the most appropriate routes that could be used, with due consideration given to safety, effective training, and public relations.

without leaving it where it is," said Richard Wilde, president of the American National Bank of Salt Lake City.

In Washington meanwhile, the chairman of the House banking Committee has called for an immediate reduction in the prime rate to 6 per cent.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., urged David Rockefeller, chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York, the nation's third largest bank, not to hold off the prime rate reduction until the eve of the November election.

Patman called high interest rates "profit taking," and blamed it for the high rate of unemployment.

Even the bankers who feel that the prime interest rate is due for a reduction, feel that Stan's prediction is too optimistic.

"If federal policy keeps putting money into the system, the rate will eventually drop. I think a drop to 7 1/2 per cent is likely in the near future, but it would take an awful big adjustment to get it down any further than that," said Dr. William Zentz, executive vice president of the Bank of the Commonwealth of Detroit.

The current round of speculation regarding the prime interest rate was triggered by three small banks in Arkansas, Wisconsin and Maine lowering their prime rate to 7 1/2 per cent.

"Prime rate cuts at small banks are meaningless, they don't have prime borrowers anyway," said Robert Whitman, president of the American National Bank of Edmonds, Wash.

The Popular Front had given Britain, West Germany and Switzerland until 10 p.m. EDT Saturday to comply with its demands. If they did not comply, the guerrillas said they would blow up the three airliners—a TWA Boeing 707, a Swissair DCs and a BOAC VC10.

A correspondent in Amman for the British newspaper the Guardian reported one Popular Front leader said the guerrillas want to ransom the 50 or so Israelis among the hostages at the rate of 100 commandos for each Israeli.

Pinched Nerves

We hear a lot about "pinched nerves" these days, but the average person does not recognize a case of pinched nerves, nor the far reaching effects this condition can have on the human body.

Common complaints that may develop as a result of pinched nerves include: headaches, dizziness, nervousness, pains in the neck, back or chest, numbness or tingling in the arms, fingers, or legs, functional heart disorders, asthma, kidney or bladder disorders, shingles, sciatica and menstrual irregularities.

Through chiropractic spinal adjustments nerves can be freed allowing nature to restore life and health back into your body. Presented in the public interest for better health through chiropractic under the auspices of the Central Ohio Chiropractic Association.

White House 'Kiddie Corps' Hears Students

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — On a spring day this year, shortly after U.S. troops moved into Cambodia, a young man was stopped as he tried to enter the campus of the University of Washington at Seattle.

A policeman, doing his duty to keep unauthorized people off the campus during that nervous time, demanded the man's identification. He had none from the college—but he had one that gave him entry into the White House.

"That cuts no ice here," said the policeman. But after some checking, Chester E. Finn, a member of the White House "kiddie corps" was allowed in.

The minor incident served to illustrate a mission, performed without fanfare, by eight White House staffers on 27 college campuses across the nation in those troubled weeks.

Their mission was to find out for President Nixon what really was going on and, if possible, to tell the administration's side. It was carrying one step further an administration objective to dispel the notion that the President is too isolated to get the mood of young people.

During the presidential campaign in 1968, Nixon had said, "Far too few of us really listen to what young people are saying. We defend their right to speak up and to dissent, we smile self-righteously at our own tolerance, and then we pay no attention to their message."

His campaign people set up "listening posts" at various places—small recording stations that invited the public to express views.

"We considered carrying it over to the White House," says Herb Klein, Nixon's director of communications. "But we discovered the cost over a period of years would be quite expensive."

Smarting over criticism that protesters went unheard in earlier demonstrations, the White House arranged during the May 9 peace gathering in Washington, for administration officials to meet with young people in small groups.

Soon afterward, the staff assistants aged 23 to 29 made their tour of campuses. Like Finn's, their visits were largely unannounced and all were informal—conducted in student unions, cafeterias, dormitories and on lawns.

"It wasn't an attempt to sell a program," says a 26-year-old staffer. "The students found out that the White House assistants who went out were really bright young people who were interested in talking to them. And the people who went out found the students were not a band of wild young revolutionaries, but people concerned about issues."

Each staffer visited three campuses, including—except for Finn—he one they graduated from only a few years ago. Their report was summarized and brought to the President.

"It would be wrong to isolate Cambodia, Kent State and Jackson State as exclusive causes of recent student discontent, although they serve to activate many moderate students," one part of the report said.

"Many students appear to accept uncritically a number of bizarre rumors—such as the administration's alleged contract with the Rand Corp. to cancel the 1972 elections—that confirm their suspicions of the government's duplicity," said another.

Primarily, says one staffer, "we learned that students were deeply concerned over the issues, but in addition there was the second problem of communication. If it wasn't for Vietnam and Cambodia there still would be this problem."

Another White House assistant, 28 years old, walked up Bascom Hill, at his alma mater, the University of Wisconsin, to chat with a Quaker-offspring group holding a peace vigil.

"In that and every other case, I didn't want to be in the position of standing up and giving lectures—why the Cambodian decision was made or debating the situation. That was not the purpose. The purpose was to gauge the intensity of the situation, the base people had for their objections. I was cordially greeted. I tried to convince everyone I was there to listen."

Later he walked into a meeting of an organization actively engaged in getting political action into the community.

"There were about six of us. I talked with them about the activity on the campus, what plans they had, what they thought produced the energy for the type of work they do."

"Halfway through I said who I was. There was a degree of apology for having been as strong as they were about some of their statements. Or they took the other attack: 'Here is a chance to really tell the White House off.'"

One staffer said he sometimes takes this approach: "I say to them, if I could take you this minute and we go into the oval office, and you sit down and express your concern and spell them out 1-2-3. Then the President restates your concern and says he understands but there is more. And he lists them 1-2-3, saying 'here I have the job and I must weigh between all these things. I go to a lot of different sources and weigh for and against certain things. Would you understand that?'"

"They invariably say they would," he added.

Senior staff members also help in the communications effort. It reaches to the very top—people like John D. Ehrlichman, assistant to the President.

For Domestic Affairs: H. R. Haldeman, assistant to the President; Robert Finch, a Presidential counselor and Klein.

All have invited young people to their offices and have gone to the campuses to engage in the dialogue.

"You get the feeling for 'rends," says Klein. "A year ago, people on campuses were more concerned with civil rights than ecology. Then you could see it building to ecology. The last three times I went out I haven't been asked anything on the economy. Very few college students seem to be interested in that. They are mostly concerned with Vietnam, the draft, the environment, funds for education, narcotics laws, Repression is a building thing."

The end result, of the drive, Klein says, "is to build an awareness of what people are talking about."

A young staffer puts it differently. "I hope," he says, "people walk away and, if nothing else, say 'that guy's not a fascist pig.'"

Abbie Hoffman Raps Customs

TORONTO (AP) — Abbott "Abbie" Hoffman, 33-year-old leader of the Youth International party, claims he was stripped and struck by customs officials during a two-hour detention at International Airport.

Hoffman, one of the Chicago 7 riot trial defendants, was on his way to make a speech at Edmonton University. He said the customs men manhandled him Thursday and seized a film about the trial and a number of Yippie posters.

G.E. Watts, a customs official, said Hoffman's detention was for "reasons of his own making" and that some of his possessions were confiscated because he had not declared them.

See No U.S. Food Shortage As Result Of Corn Blight

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-level Agriculture Department official has predicted no nationwide food shortage will result from the widespread corn blight.

"The idea is fantastic," the official said. "There is no chance of a food shortage in this country because of the blight."

The official made the statement Thursday. The Agriculture Department will release late today its closely guarded monthly report on crop production which is expected to shed the most definitive light on the 1970 corn situation.

The corn crop has been damaged severely by dry weather in key growing areas. But it is a fungus disease called Southern leaf blight that has sent grain markets into a frenzy and fanned rumors the nation may face a food shortage.

No one knows for sure how much damage has been done to the nation's most important crop, worth $5 billion a year simply as grain. But today's report should help.

The monthly crop report is one of the most carefully guarded secrets routinely distributed in Washington. It is prepared behind locked doors and then delivered under armed escort to a room where at a given signal it is released to the news media.

The security measures are taken to prevent leaks which might affect markets or give an advantage to speculators.

No farm commodity approaches corn for its impact on the life style demanded by today's Americans. It sets the pace for all feed grains used in producing livestock, poultry and dairy products.

Should this year's crop be devastated by the blight as much as first suggested by scientists and grainmen meeting in Athens, Ga., on Aug. 14—some thought up to half the crop might be lost—the country could be in serious trouble.

But more recent estimates by private traders and others point to a blight damage of less than 10 per cent nationally.

Dry weather has reduced expected yields considerably already. In July the department expected a record large crop of more than 4.8 billion bushels.

Last month, before the blight report's gained national attention, the estimate was reduced to less than 4.7 billion.

Recent private estimates have been in the range of 4.2 billion to 4.4 billion bushels.

Despite the attention focused on today's report, experts say the truest picture of blight damage and drought effects will not be known until the fall corn harvest is in full swing throughout the midwestern corn belt.

It is there that the blight has caused the most apprehension.

A lightning arrester is a device for protection against lightning discharges. In radio, a lightning arrester is a spark-gap connected between aerial and earth, by which abnormal voltage caused by lightning can be discharged into the ground, rendering it harmless, thus protecting a radio receiver set from lightning discharge.

English, U.S. Secretaries Trade Positions

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Martha, secretary to Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., is back at her old job after nearly seven weeks in London as Mrs. Smith, secretary to Peter Emery, a Conservative Member of Parliament.

"They're so formal over there in England," she said. "They kept calling me Mrs. Smith. I'd look round to see who they meant. Over here I'm always Martha."

Martha Smith, who runs the senator's office here in Dallas, went to London to take the place of Emery's secretary, Elizabeth Monnington, who worked in Tower's office at Washington during the exchange period. She found quite a few things were different.

"Englishmen were much more efficient than I expected," she said. "They're very articulate and they're very polite. But there is a language barrier. You ring someone on the telephone instead of calling them—that kind of thing."

Martha found office conditions different, too. In Dallas she drives her car to a downtown parking lot near the senator's 18th floor office in the federal building. She is one of a staff of 36-35 in senator's Washington office, seven in Austin, the state capital, and four in London.

The idea Tower and Emery, friends since 1961, should swap secretaries came up when the Texan was in London after a NATO conference last February. Martha enjoyed working in England but she has a few reservations about taking any permanent assignment there.

Dear Abby: Competes With Puppy For Affection

DEAR ABBY: If you could see my home, my clothes closet and my car you would probably think me the luckiest woman in the world, but here is my problem: I am so hungry for a reassuring word and a little affection, I could just die. John doesn't kiss me "hello" or "good-by."

I know he loves me, but he doesn't show it. Our sex life is satisfactory, but it's routine and wordless.

We have a little poodle which John cuddles and plays with. When he reads the newspaper the dog snuggles in his lap which he scratches his neck and pets him. That pup gets more affection than I do. Tell me, Abby, is it normal for a wife to be jealous of a family pet?

Sometimes I get so hungry for a little sweet talk, a compliment, the feel of his arm around my waist while I'm cooking or a chance to sit in his lap, I'd trade all the material things I have for one affectionate squeeze.

When he's asleep he wraps his long arms around me and I enjoy it so much I hate to fall asleep. He's so good and dear, and I'm so frustrated.

DISGUSTED
DEAR DISGUSTED: He's not very bright. Some of the people might see him standing there and think he just came out.

DEAR ABBY: After 15 years of a basically sound and seemingly happy marriage, my wife has decided she would like to sleep with another man. She says she hasn't anyone particular in mind, but, of course, he must be "special."

Apparently this idea has been simmering for several years and has only just come to light recently.

Wilberforce Leadership Shaken Up

WILBERFORCE, Ohio (AP) — A feud between two Central State University officials ended Thursday with the firing of President Herman R. Branson and the resignations of two of the school's trustees.

My wife is a bright woman and believes in total honesty. She says she hates to grow old never experiencing anyone but me.

Branson had bitterly opposed the appointment of Waverly Glover to the school's board of trustees. Glover, who resigned as CSU fiscal vice president to take a post with the city of Springfield, was named last month to the board by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Now I am confused. Is this kind of honesty necessary? And if so, should I be able to accept it, laugh it off, or would you say our marriage is in serious trouble.

In a letter to Ohio Board of Regents Chancellor John D. Millett last month, Branson charged that Glover had been responsible for "chaos" and "mismanagement" of university fiscal affairs.

ANONYMOUS
DEAR ANONYMOUS: I would say your marriage is in serious trouble. Your wife wants more than "total honesty," she wants "permission." No matter how she slices it, it's still baloney.

The former university president reportedly urged Millett and members of the Ohio legislature to upset Glover's appointment.

DEAR ABBY: Our next door neighbor is a relatively pleasant person, but on two occasions recently, when he was high, he came over here and got belligerent and profane toward my wife and children.

The Dayton Journal - Herald said Thursday that Glover is considering a libel suit against Branson.

I am entering my dotage (54) and abhor violence. However, I was boxing champ of my Word War II outfit. If this neighbor acts up a third time, I may find the overpowering urge to skip over there and give him the "old one-two". Should I?

The board of trustees voted Thursday to dismiss Branson. Branson has accepted the presidency of Lincoln University in Pennsylvania and offered his resignation to the trustees May 28, to be effective Dec. 1.

RETIRED CHAMP, BERKELEY, CAL.
DEAR CHAMP: A man of your obvious intelligence shouldn't have to resort to the old "one-two."

Sales Tax Receipts Up In County

Tax receipts in Pickaway County for the two week period ending Aug. 29 were up 22.59 per cent. according to a report from the office of John D. Herbert, state treasurer.

Tell your neighbor (when he's not high) that you resent his vulgarity toward your family, and tell your family to stay away from him. That failing — sign a complaint charging him with invasion of privacy (or worse, if possible).

Receipts were $23,189.90 for the period this year while a year ago they were $19,916.36, an increase of $4,273.54. For the fiscal year beginning July 1, tax receipts are $83,140.47 compared to $74,676.14 last year.

IGNORED
DEAR IGNORED: Don't sit around waiting for your horse to dry up. Make your husband notice you. You may have to shove the poodle out of his lap, but you can make it up to him (the dog) come "Be Kind To Animals Week."

Motor vehicle and house trailer sales tax collections are down 1.19 per cent for the two-week period. Collections this year are $18,783.34 while last year the collections were $19,009.56.

Greet him at the door with a kiss that has a future in it. Compliment him. Be aggressively affectionate and if nothing happens, well, you haven't lost anything. But I'm betting you wake him up.

Collections for the fiscal year are also running a little behind last year. Current year receipts are $84,514.07 compared to $84,626.51 a year ago.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a minister who stands outside the girlie shows during the week of a local fair to see how many people he knows go in?

Hair Hassle

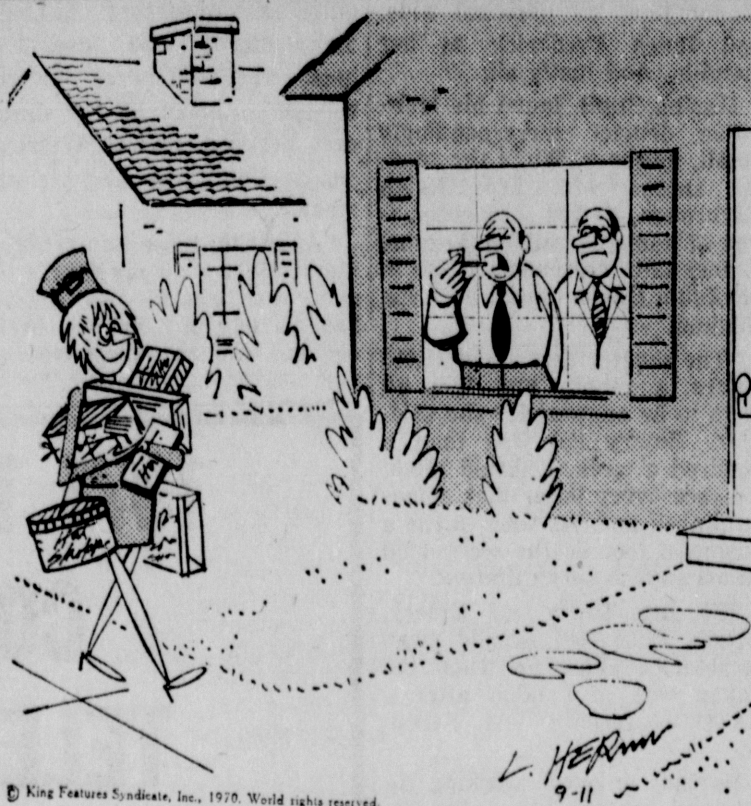

A Chicago barbers union local is urging its members to refuse to trim long hair, because so many men are wearing long locks that jobs for barbers have diminished. The secretary of the union fumed, "I think the government should do something about it."

He should remember that barbers are in the business of serving people, not dictating the length of the haircut. Even young men who want their long locks sheared hesitate to enter a shop where they know they will be attacked by words as sharp as the razor.

Politeness isn't out of date, even if short hair seems to be.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

IN NANCY MILFORD'S "Zelda," the fascinating story of the Scott Fitzgeralds' madcap but ultimately disastrous careers, she tells how one day, traveling by train through Europe, the beautiful, irresponsible Zelda suddenly clutched her husband's arm and exclaimed, "Good God, Scott! We forgot the baby!"

A confirmed bachelor ran into an old pal who had deserted the ranks of the unmarried two months earlier and inquired, "Well, Dick, how's married life?" "Wonderful!" enthused Dick. "You're a sucker not to try it. Every evening I come home to a house that's shiny and clean. My paper and slippers are laid out for me, the TV is turned to my favorite program, and the dinner that's served me—well, it's perfect."

The bachelor must have looked a bit dubious, because Bridegroom Dick hastened to add, "Maybe I forgot one detail: we're living with my mother."

DIALOGUE:
1. Dentist: "You don't have to pay in advance."
Patient: "I know I don't. I'm counting my money before you give me gas."
2. "I believe I see a spider web in the corner. To what do you attribute that?"
"I'd say to a spider, ma'am."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

It is a source of tremendous gratification to learn that in the midst of anger, hostility, aggression, and massive social problems, there can be real evidence of man's devotion to man. Spurred by the limitless energy of Dr. John M. Converse, one of America's most eminent plastic surgeons, a new center for the rehabilitation of those whose faces are scarred and deformed has been established.

It is known as the Center for Craniofacial Anomalies, and is part of the Institute of Reconstructive Plastic Surgery. I was one of the fortunate observers of a dream that was converted into a reality by the dedication of Dr. Converse and his colleagues to those who pay a lifetime penalty for a deformed face. Generous grants have now created this Center, formed by bricks and mortar but solidified by love, dedication and miraculous surgery.

Every conceivable kind of birth defect, facial injury by accident and burns will be given the advantages of surgical correction along with comprehensive psychological rehabilitation.

The psycho-social aspects of facial deformities such as the cleft lip, under-developed ears, and bony defects of the jaw, the eyes, or chin, and the nose will be the target for this new Center which has but one goal: to help return and maintain the dignity of man.

According To Boyle

By JOY STILLEY (For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Whatever happened to Mom's good old home cooking? Nearly 30 per cent of all food consumed in the United States is now eaten in restaurants or snack bars, an increase of 5 per cent in five years.

Lo, the nonvanishing Indian: The Navajo, largest of the American Indian nations, has jumped in population from an estimated 15,000 in 1888 to 125,000 today. But 24 per cent of 3,500 reservation families studied had no visible means of support and the mean income for a family of six was $45 a week. That's about as mean as you can get.

Two of history's famous gluttons were King Louis XIV of France and Diamond Jim Brady, the American bon vivant. For dinner the French monarch often had three soups, five entrees, three fowl, two fish and several vegetable dishes—then topped it all off with some hard-boiled eggs. As for Diamond Jim, at his death he had a stomach six times the size of that of a normal man.

Where are the world's largest and longest rivers? Not on land, but in the oceans. For example, off the Florida coast the Gulf Stream pours a flood of two billion tons of water a day. Off Nova Scotia, this same river of warm water spreads to a width of about 250 miles.

Quotable Notables: "He who slings mud generally loses ground." — Adlai Stevenson.

Facts that leave you breathless: During the building of the great Egyptian pyramids 9 tons of gold were spent to buy onions for the workers.

Larger animals generally tend to live longer than smaller animals, but size is in itself not a direct criterion of longevity. The average mouse lass only three years, but a queen ant may live to 19. Whales and elephants are ready for the final gas pat 50, man—ready or not—wears out about 70, only five years longer than the 65-year life span of the halibut.

Quickie information: Birds have a poorly developed sense of smell. A cricket only an inch long can be heard for almost a mile. Vichyssoise isn't a French but an American soup. We now spice our meals with 1,500 tons of pepper a month. Tableware was so scarce in Europe 1,000 years ago that guests were expected to bring their own spoons and daggers to a banquet.

It was Nicholas Chamfort who observed, "There are two things we must resign ourselves to on pain of finding life unbearable: the ravages of time and human injustice."

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. In order to be considered for publication, they must bear the correct name and address of the writer. Anonymous letters and those signed with the request that signatures be withheld will not be accepted for publication. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writers and not necessarily those of The Herald.

Dear Editor:
I have just had an experience that mothers all over the country are having this week. My child is going to first grade.

As I watched my daughter walk out the lane to catch the bus, it seemed the entire six years of her life whizzed by in a few minutes. Was it possible that our first born was really leaving the nest? It seemed only yesterday she was but a small bundle of sweetness dependent on me for her every need.

After six years of teaching and encouraging her to care for her daily needs such as washing herself, brushing hair and teeth, tying shoes and dressing, suddenly I realized the time was up for learning these necessary tasks and today was the real test.

With mixed emotions I watched this confident and happy little girl climb up the steps of the school bus and I thought, this is the beginning up the ladder of success we all discuss and strive for. While smiling cheerfully I fought back the tears for I must not show a hint of sadness on this eventful day.

I think every mother will have to admit she enjoys being needed and depended upon and after that first day of school we share our children's lives with teachers, classmates, and new friends. No longer will I be the one to make every decision during the day. Fearfully I wondered if I had instilled enough of the necessary qualities in the six years I was in control.

Would she be the kind of child I would be proud of when I wasn't there to guide her every move? Only time would tell and as I walked through that empty bedroom, I uttered a prayer for my little girl and all the little children who are just beginning on the difficult road which leads in many directions. I prayed they would have the necessary strength and courage to avoid the temptations and bad influences that will perhaps cross their paths, if not today, then in some future tomorrow.

Yes, today I experienced a new emotion. It is "sad-joy" or better known as "heartache with a smile." This emotion was prominent as my little girl proudly announced "Mommy now I'm big" and with love and complete devotion I reluctantly cut the apron strings.

The Business World

By DAVID BURKE (For John Cuniff)

NEW YORK (AP) — Among the ill-fated assumptions of the past decade you may number these:

—No administration will act strongly against inflation because to do so is politically unwise and will cause all sorts of social disruptions.

The idea was prevalent a couple of years ago when the speculative fever was still running hot. To take firm action against inflation, it was reasoned, might inflame the depressed urban areas, already starved for funds.

"A little inflation is a good thing," said adherents of this outlook. The best that any administration can do, they said, is to try to talk down prices. But turn the screws on the entire economy? The country won't stand for it.

The truth is that the country has stood for it. Inflation persists, but if the reasoning of economists is correct, a lot of steam has escaped from beneath prices, the result of a restrictive economic policy out of Washington.

—A low rate of unemployment is possible without generating inflation.

Perhaps a few people held to this belief very strongly, but some politicians and economists were willing to experiment. A booming economy would be able to employ even ineffective workers. Job training programs would raise the skills of the marginally productive. That was the belief.

For a while it looked possible. The economy boomed and unemployment fell. But then inflation began rising at almost the same rate as joblessness fell. Output per man hour dropped, logically, and prices rose, understandably.

Now, most economists will settle for 3.8 per cent joblessness constituting "full employment."

—Fixed-dollar investments—such as in savings accounts, insurance and bonds—are your best security.

This notion was under attack for years, but it was still firmly believed in during the past decade, is still believed in by some, and may once again become believed in by many. Equity investments, it was argued, might provide you a bigger return but they also entailed greater risks. Savings accounts and insurance guaranteed the safety of your principal even during a depression.

The undermining of that reasoning can be attributed to inflation. So what if you got back $5 for every $5 invested. It really wasn't the same $5 after all; inflation had reduced it considerably—maybe even cut it in half.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States concluded recently: "If you are one of the thousands of Americans investing in either a savings account or life insurance, you were also one of those who suffered losses totaling $60 billion last year in the value of these two investments . . ."

Revolt Against Disorder

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN
MUNICH — If what is being said here at the sessions of the Mont Pelerin Society is any indication, the coming year on American campuses will see some tough showdowns between nihilistic students and the more conservative professors who are fed up to the teeth over the breakdown of academic order. The educators here, along with the economists in attendance, are drawn from two score universities in the United States and the rest of the world.

The suppressed rage against the way things have been going in the university world has cropped up in discussion after discussion nominally devoted to exploring the place of the business enterprises in contemporary society. It has been a common observation that the intellectuals of the Western world have little use for the businessman. In previous years the free market economists have included such eminent people as ex-Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, creator of West Germany's "economic miracle." In promoting freedom for the enterprisers they were able to take the negative attitude of the intellectuals in stride. This year, however, everything is different.

Thus, Dean G. M. Wattles of Rockford College in Illinois departed from the printed text of a paper on "The American Educator's View of the Entrepreneur" to denounce the "Princeton plan" for excusing students for two weeks in the autumn to campaign against anybody and everybody who is for the Nixon foreign policy. The spreading idea that the university must become a "social agency" for action in the political realm has some of the educators very worried. It could mean the end of tax exemption for the colleges and also the end of important private financial support.

The most scathing analysis of American higher education came from Professor James M. Buchanan of Virginia, who said "the American college student has merely taken to acting out what he has been taught."

In Buchanan's view the seeds of contemporary anarchy were planted thirty years ago by faculties that have nothing but contempt for traditional Western and Christian values.

Until very recently, however, the anarchy remained limited to the realm of ideas. Boys and girls were free to espouse all manner of heresy within the cloistered collegiate walls and the professors were free to encourage the most egregious intellectual fantasies. It was all a charade just so long as three external institutions — the family, the church and the law saw that the campus commitments to radical subversion did not leap into the streets.

Order within the family structure, says Professor Buchanan, was preserved by sanctions. (Papa either spanked or cut off the allowance.) The church warned of divine retribution. The law insisted on penalties for wrongdoing. Then sometime in the Sixties the family control over the young was dissolved by the accumulating acids of extreme permissiveness. The church, prodded by the likes of Chaplain William Sloane Coffin of Yale, went all out for the "social gospel," which means that it has substituted collective political action for a concern with individual salvation. And the law, as interpreted by permissive justices, has made effective prosecution a sometime thing. Buchanan even went so far as to say that the big law schools have become "the most subversive institutions in America, and that Nixon would do well if he announced that henceforward he would only appoint non-lawyers to the Supreme Court."

The idea that the students, no longer held in check by the family, the church and the law, have merely been acting out their education suggests that society to protect itself, may have to let the universities go down the drain. What good are they if they are not training anybody to sustain a decent social order? Why should the taxpayer or the private honor work himself to the bone to turn his children over to a type of education that is expressed by bombing laboratories in Wisconsin and burning R.O.T.C. buildings in California and Ohio?

The Federal Trade Commission has warned wigmakers about advertising. Evidently they've been splitting hairs.

It seems wig ads have been leaving the impression that the product is human hair when it isn't. The buyer is often distressed.

The wigmakers got a warning. If misleading ads continue, there'll be the devil toupee.

If a wig is made of animal hair, the ad should say so, says the commission. A woman has a right to know if she's dogged out.

Some wig ads read "natural hair." The commission thinks it should sometimes be "natural hare."

Wigs have become popular of late. Scalper's prices.

A woman has a real complaint if she starts combing a new wig and finds out all it lacks is the cat's meow. That's what makes parting such sweet sorrow.

St. Paul United Methodist Church Plans Centennial

On Sept. 20, the St. Paul United Methodist Church on the Stoutsville Charge will be observing its centennial.

When the Church was first organized it was known as the Leist Church. Later the name St. Paul Evangelical Church became the official name.

In 1947 the Evangelical and United Brethren Churches united to become the Evangelical United Brethren Church and in 1968 a uniting conference was held in Dallas, Texas with the Methodist Church to merge the two denominations and become the United Methodist Church.

Three young men have entered the full-time ministry from St. Paul Church. They are Rev. Marvin Leist, now executive secretary of the United Methodist Development Fund and executive secretary of Church Extension of the United Methodist Church, Rev. Earl Leist, pastor at Elliston, Ohio and Rev. Charles Stevens, presently serving at Burbank, Ohio.

THE St. Paul Church is located in Washington Township on the Ringgold-Southern Road and is sometimes called the Railroad Church. Rev. Charles Hemming is the pastor.

Regular services will be held on September 20. Sunday School classes will convene at 9:30 a.m. for the various age groups and during the worship service at 10:30 a.m. Bishop F. Gerald Ensley, Bishop of the Ohio West Conference of the United Methodist Church will deliver the address.

At noon a basket dinner will be enjoyed.

The afternoon service will convene at 2 p.m. and will feature special music by students of the Circleville Bible College, a history of St. Paul Church, and a time of reminiscing by former ministers and members.

The public is cordially invited to attend all or any part of any of the services.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWERY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Thursday was the season's first night of specials. Viewers with access to channels of the three major networks could have watched special programs from the early to the late news programs.

Liveliest part came in mid-evening, on ABC. Gene Kelly was host on a latter-day minstrel show called "Changing Scene," which kept the performers sitting on benches around the stage during the hour, and made up in noise and youthful enthusiasm what it lacked in wit.

There were a number of fresh faces on the program, particularly a group of 14 young singers called the Mike Curb Congregation, and a New England-style comic named Jud Strunk—who also plays tunes on ski poles. For safety's sake there also were Arte Johnson of "Laugh-in" for dialect comedy and James Garner and Barbara Eden for glamor.

While everyone tried hard, the finest moments came when Kelly did his one too-short dance number.

This was followed on ABC by an hour-long tape of highlights at the Calgary Stampede, a Canadian rodeo that attracts contestants from all over America. Arthur Godfrey was around to chuckle over the goings-on—calf roping, bronc riding and the rest. It was active and probably great viewing for people who enjoy rodeos.

CBS's special "America . . ." earlier was an ambitious effort to combine travelogue, history, old landmarks, young singers and a lot of homely philosophy.

The camera traveled all over the country, with frequent pauses so some contemporary young singer could present an appropriate number.

There was lots of lovely scenery and Glen Ford briefed us on history and tried to give the hour a semblance of focus.

While well intentioned, it was also monotonous and, worse, dull.

Earlier on NBC there was an hour documentary on "The Ice People," a study of the plight of the eskimo. With Hugh Downs narrating, the program showed how these independent peoples have abandoned their igloos and hunting grounds to live in shabby communities, look for work and often not find any.

Like a somewhat similar study last season on CBS, the program emphasized that improved health care and educational advantages are all to the good, but mourned that civilization has changed the life of a primitive people.

Recommended weekend viewing:

Saturday night—"George M," musical, NBC, 7:30-9 EDT; Circus Highlights, NBC, 9-10; Miss America Finals, NBC, 10-midnight.

Sunday night—"Just Friends," variety, ABC, 7-8 EDT; "The Bold Ones," NBC, 10-11, premiere of a new segment starring Hal Hobbrook.

Tarleton School Sets Reunion

In 1941 some of the older graduates from Tarleton School when it was a first class high school met and planned a reunion. Some hadn't seen each other for many years. Those attending agreed that it should be made an annual affair.

During the second World War with gasoline rationed it was not held for four years. The reunions then resumed. In the 29 years that have elapsed about 75 who signed their names on the record book have died. Each year there are fewer of the old timers present.

The first few meetings were held at the school house and since it was torn down, reservations are made each year for the Community House in Tarleton.

This coming Sunday they will meet again and anyone who has lived in or around Tarleton will be welcomed.

Ohio State Grants Students Bigger Voice In Decisions

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio State University Board of Trustees have granted students an expanded role in university decision making.

The trustees approved a recommendation from president Novice G. Fawcett Thursday that three students be added to the Council on Academic Affairs and three to the Research Council.

And plans for creation of a university ombudsman to field individual grievances from members of the academic community were also completed.

In addition, Fawcett submitted recommendations for reorganization and realignment of the central administrative structure of the university.

"A university, to be vital, must have a responsiveness to the evolving needs of the people which it serves," he said. "It is my responsibility as president to effect realignment . . . which I believe will be most responsive to the needs of the university."

The administrative changes include making the provost and vice president for academic affairs the executive head of the Office of Academic Affairs, Office of Research and Sponsored Programs and the Office of the Coordination of Minority Affairs.

He will be responsible directly to the president for all matters relating to the academic program.

High Schools In Front Line Of Mexican - U.S. Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — High schools are becoming the front line of protest for young Mexican-Americans, most of whom never make it to college, says a specialist for the Senate's Equal Educational Opportunity Committee.

Eighty per cent of all Mexican-Americans drop out before they finish high school, said Jose Gonzalez as Mexican-American groups began preparing evidence they hope will convince the President's Commission on Campus Unrest to expand its probe to secondary schools.

At school after school in the Southwest, high school Chicanos — or Mexican-Americans — are walking out in protest of what they consider humiliating, insensitive and "anglicizing" treatment by teachers, Gonzalez said.

The National Mexican-American Anti-Defamation Committee

asked the commission to look into the growing protest movement by young chicanos. Specifically, the commission was urged to investigate last month's Mexican-American anti-war march in Los Angeles which ended in a riot with three persons dead.

The commission, which was appointed by President Nixon following the death of six students in Ohio and Mississippi campuses, said it had planned no further hearings, but urged the Mexican-American group to document the plight of young chicanos.

The job was begun here this week when some upper-level Mexican-Americans in the federal government sat down with young militants and such liaison workers as Armando Nick Reyes, chairman of the anti-defamation committee. Don Morales, assistant to J.

Stanley Potterger, civil rights chief in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said "all of Washington is oriented to the black and the white," with no attention for the chicanos with their very real — but different — civil rights problem.

"The Civil Rights Act of 1964 never was interpreted to mean Mexican-American," Morales said.

"The federal government never took the appropriate action to cut off funds because of discrimination against our group," he said.

"I predict as more chicanos enter college, there will be a hell of a lot more unrest by chicanos," said Carlos Rene Guerra, president of the Mexican-American Youth Organization (MAYO), a Texas-based group which has supported protesting high school students.

Taft Denies Position Change On Issue Of Campus Unrest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Robert Taft Jr. has labeled as "completely untrue" charges by his Democratic senatorial opponent that he has switched positions on campus unrest.

The Republican Congressman made the statement in Washington Thursday after introducing a bill which would cut off federal aid to schools in states which fail to adopt procedures for handling student disorders.

Taft was accused by his opponent, Howard Metzenbaum, Wednesday of reversing his position on campus unrest for political profit. Metzenbaum said Taft voted two years ago against an amendment that would have forced colleges to cut off aid to students involved in disorders.

"I have always supported the right of the federal government to cut off funds to institutions which failed to deal with unrest," Taft said. "I have never supported the right of the federal government to impose itself to make judgments about individual students."

Taft accused Metzenbaum of trying to avoid a stand on the campus unrest question. "We do not know his position," he said.

Metzenbaum was in Toledo Thursday, where he told the state convention of the Building Trades Council.

"The American dream of owning a house has been shattered by the nightmare of banks charging the highest interest rates in a century."

He said unemployment in the building trades is twice that of other industries even though millions of Americans need homes.

Metzenbaum called upon the Federal Reserve Board to "quit hinting about lowering interest rates and act now in the public interest."

Elsewhere, Republican gubernatorial candidate Roger Cloud told Dayton businessmen Thursday the amount of money Ohio spends on welfare "simply does not make sense."

"We can wait no longer to introduce full efficiency and greater legal accountability in our welfare system," he said in a speech before the Megacity Security Council.

For every dollar Ohio spends for schools, Cloud said, it is spending more than 70 cents for welfare. He said vocational training and policing of frauds are keys to "eliminate continued welfare dependency."

Congress Extends Milk Funding Program Locally

Prices in the school milk program in Circleville will return to the original price of four cents per half-pint—at least until Oct. 15.

In a communication from the State Department of Education, local schools were advised of the extension of the milk agreement by resolution of Congress until the October date. It is hoped that Congress will take action on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's appropriation bill by the new deadline.

Schools participating in the federal milk reimbursement program were advised late last month that the provisions for the funding of the program had not been included in the Agriculture Department's bill pending before Congress.

Local cafeteria programs were forced to charge students the full cost of seven cents per carton during the first two weeks of classes.

mandos. Guerrilla broadcasts declared that such a purge was a prerequisite for a "genuine and durable" peace between the Jordanian army and the Palestinian fighters. They also called for dissolution of a "reactionary clique of CIA agents around the king which acts as a government within a government."

The broadcasts mentioned no names but the chief targets were Hussein's uncle, Nasser ben Jamil, and the king's cousin, Zeid ben Shaker. Hussein dismissed both from key army posts to appease the guerrillas after fighting in June in which about 1,000 persons were killed or wounded. Later he reinstated Ben Shaker as assistant army chief of staff, and the guerrillas claim Ben Jamil has returned secretly to Amman from Europe and with Ben Shaker is trying to form an army crackdown on the guerrillas.

The U.S. State Department announced that Jon W. Stewart, 30, an American attached to the U.S. Embassy in Amman, disappeared Wednesday. Earlier this week, the department reported that Sgt. Irvin Graham of the U.S. military attaché's office had been taken into custody by guerrillas. A spokesman said Thursday Graham had not been released.

Summer Chill Envelops Central U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A late-summer chill enveloped almost the entire nation from the Rockies to the Appalachians today. Snow and freezing cold spilled out of Canada into Montana and Idaho.

Far to the south, Hurricane Ella whined over the Gulf of Mexico less than 300 miles southeast of Brownsville, Tex.

Temperatures fell into the 40s over a large part of the Midcontinent before daybreak. Readings in the 30s nipped scattered areas from the Rockies to the Great Lakes.

Travelers warnings were in effect in parts of Montana and northern Idaho. Freeze warnings were issued for tonight. Hurricane Ella which developed suddenly Thursday in the Gulf, packed peak winds estimated at 85 miles an hour. Forecasters expected the storm to grow, both in size and force, before striking land.

Scattered thunderstorms dumped heavy rain into portions of the Southeast during the night. Nearly 3 inches soaked Jackson, Miss.

Generally mild weather persisted along the Eastern seaboard and there were occasional showers.

Temperatures before daybreak ranged from 32 at Out

Bank, Mont., to 93 at Yuma, Ariz., and Needles, Calif.

Some Church Names Have Odd Ring

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Words such as "cranks," "scrubgrass," "slash," "jet" and "slaughters" wouldn't seem likely candidates for local church names but they're on the ecclesiastical lists.

So are congregational names such as "black jack," "savage" and "gunpowder," and also "leer," "kissimmee," "lover's lane" and "featherbed."

The sampling of odd church names started out last spring as a one-shot feature in the ecumenical weekly, Christian Century, but it drew a tide of additional "funny names" that have filed a half dozen other columns throughout the summer.

"We find we have tapped a limitless source, but it is time to move on," observed the Rev. Dr. Martin Marty and Dean Pearman, of Chicago, compilers of the santimony-spoofing column, "Pen-Ultimate," in winding up on the series on the subject.

Among the curious names turned up, here are some of 'hem on the Presbyterian roster:

Barbecue Presbyterian church, Oliva, N.C.
Nonesuch Presbyterian church, Versailles, Ky.
Kissimmee Presbyterian church, Kissimmee, Fla.

Cranks Presbyterian church, Cranks, Ky.

Black Jack Presbyterian church, Batesville, Miss.
Featherbed Lane Presbyterian church, Bronx, N.Y.
Scrubgrass Presbyterian church, Emlenton, Pa.

Among Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) congregations are:

Slaughters Christian church, Slaughters, Ky.
Jet Christian church, Jet, Okla.

Slash Christian church, Ashland, Va.
Lovers Lane Christian church, Akron, Ohio.

Among American Lutheran Congregations:

Leer Lutheran church, Leer, Mich.

Quaker congregations include Gunpowder Friends Meeting, Sparks, Md. Hasty Friends at Hasty, Colo., and Economy Friends at Economy, Ind.

There's a Peculiar United Methodist church at Peculiar, Mo., and among United Churches of Christ: Intake church, Intake, Mont.; Brown's Wonder church, Lebanon, Ind.; Savage church, Savage, Mont.; Harsh church, Carrollton, Ohio, and Cannon Ball Church in Cannon Ball, N.D.

Bids On 31 Road Projects Opened By State Office

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bids on 31 projects including a $10.1 million section of Interstate 71 in Norwood, a Cincinnati suburb, which had been held up because of federal regulations, were opened by the Ohio Department of Highways Thursday.

The apparent low bid on the Cincinnati project, originally scheduled for bid opening last March, was $10.1 million entered by the Foley Construction Co. of Cincinnati for a 1.6-mile section. The state estimate was $10.2 million. Only one section of Interstate 71 remains to be placed under contract.

Other major projects included in today's bidding were: CUYAHOGA — Three miles of I-90; apparent low bid of $6.866 million submitted by the Great Lakes Construction Co., Cleveland; state estimate, $6.869 million. The improvement lies between the Lorain County line and west of Canterbury Road.

AUGLAIZE — A 4.6 mile section of the U.S. 33-Ohio 29 St. Marys bypass; apparent low bid of $6.8 million submitted jointly by Mier Brothers, Inc., and Harper Supply, Inc., Archbold; state estimate $8.6 million.

SCIOTO — A 1.6-mile section of Ohio 348, an Appalachian Highway Development System project; apparent low bid Engle Construction Co., McArthur, $1.7 million; state estimate $1.9 million. The improvement includes two new bridges over the Scioto River and its overflow area near Lucasville.

HANCOCK — Paving and constructing one bridge on U.S. 30N for work length of .340 miles; apparent low bid C.P. Callaway of Maumee, $162,681; state estimate $229,000.

VAN WERT — Paving and constructing two bridges on U.S. 224; apparent low bid NAG Sunday of Van Wert, $245,208; state estimate $354,000.

According to National Geographic, legend credits a Chinese woman seeking shade as the inventor of the umbrella in 2000 B.C. Early umbrellas, shaped like Buddhist pagodas, soon became symbols of religious and political power.

Talking it over

Some of the key moments in our education are those times when we discussed with someone older the interesting things we learn.

But, to speak frankly about religious education today, one of the serious handicaps facing boys and girls who are sent (not brought) to church is that they have little opportunity to "talk it over" at home.

Moral and spiritual growth is nurtured by family discussion of the truths taught in classroom and pulpit. But this presumes that parents and children together are sharing the experiences of worshipping God and studying the Christian Faith. Candidly, too, it presumes that the parents will be the pace-setters . . . advanced enough in their own religious growth to answer simple, urgent questions.

It was always fun to tell "Sis" what we had learned at school. But, remember, it was Dad and Mother we counted on when we couldn't find the answers!

For your children's sake — and your own — attend church regularly.

The Adult Reading World

Bible scholars will be glad to know that the Pickaway County library has now on its shelves in one volume the old and new Testaments of The New English Bible.

This authoritative translation was begun in 1948; the New Testament appeared in 1961. It represents a joint effort by the Church of England, The Church of Scotland, The Methodist, Baptist, and Congregational Churches. These five groups initiated the plans and were later joined by the Society of Friends, the Churches in Wales, the Churches in Ireland, the British and Foreign Bible Society, and the National Bible Society of Scotland. Still later, representatives of the Roman Catholic Church accepted an invitation to attend as observers. This is a completely new translation, not a revision, and it employs contemporary idiom.

There are, of course, many Bible resource tools in the library. All encompassing is the twelve-volume set of "The Interpreter's Bible." Others are "The Concise Bible Commentary" by W. K. Lowther, and "Zondervan's Pictorial Bible Dictionary."

"Good News According to Mark" by Edward Schweizer, translated by Donald Madvig, is an excellent commentary on the third gospel. It is claimed that it is the first major work to utilize "Good News for Modern Man, The New Testament in Today's English Version."

"Beyond Belief" by Robert N. Bellah, is composed of "Essays on Religion in a Post-traditional World." Mr. Bellah discusses the modernization of religion with reference to the Protestant Ethic, Islam, Japan, and the United States.

Millar Burrows is the author of "The Dead Sea Scrolls." J. B. Phillips wrote "Letters to Young Churches."

Among the many biographies of St. Paul is "The Apostle, Life of Paul" by John Pollack. In 1943, Sholem Ashe treated the same subject in his great work, "The Apostle." More recently, Taylor Caldwell's "Great Lion of God" was published.

Still a great favorite is "Dear and Glorious Physician," also by Taylor Caldwell. "The Robe" and "The Big Fisherman" by Lloyd C. Douglas are enjoyed by adults and young adults as well.

The Peril of Secularism

MATERIAL THINGS VS. SPIRITUAL THINGS AND MORAL INTEGRITY

Scripture—Genesis 25:19-34.

By R. H. RAMSEY
SECULARISM is the practice of the absence of God. A world in which God is not considered is a secular world. And a life lived without consideration for God is a secular life. Secularism puts man — and man's standards and values — in the place of God and His revelations. It is worldly, sophisticated, seductive, concerned only with the here and now, the earthly happiness and well-being of the individual. It is sensual, materialistic, hedonistic, appealing to covetousness and pride. And it completely ignores God, the soul of man and eternity. Esau offers a good example of the secular man.

It would be unfair and not entirely accurate to say that Jacob was the epitome of godliness and Esau purely secular, yet both philosophies are represented by the brothers, especially in the matter of the birthright.

his brother for something to eat. Instead of sharing gladly, which would seem to be the natural thing for a brother to do, Jacob offered to trade the food for Esau's birthright as the eldest son.

The birthright of the eldest son included a double portion of the estate, but this was not Jacob's primary concern. Both he and Esau knew of God's promise to make a great nation of the seed of Abraham and Jacob wanted to be a part of this plan of God's. Since taking the father's place as leader of the tribe was the right of the firstborn, this is what Jacob wanted.

Obviously Jacob was taking advantage of the situation. But he and Esau may have discussed the matter of birthright before and Esau could have indicated he did not value the privileges nor care for the responsibilities that went with being the firstborn.

GOLDEN TEXT

"Looking diligently lest any man fail of the grace of God; lest any root of bitterness springing up trouble you, and thereby many be defiled; lest there be any fornicator, or profane person, as Esau, who for one morsel of meat sold his birthright."—Hebrews 12:15-16.

For twenty years after his marriage to Rebekah, Isaac, had been without an heir. At the age of sixty he prayed for a son. Again God assured him of the continuance of Abraham's line and answered Isaac's prayer with the birth of twins.

Although they were twins, their natures were entirely different. Esau, the firstborn, was rough, vigorous, an outdoorsman and hunter. Jacob, on the other hand, was a tent-dweller — quiet, plain, dependable — a nonentity in contrast to the more vibrant Esau. Esau's rugged nature appealed to Isaac and he was his favorite, especially since Esau provided the venison which Isaac liked so much. Jacob was his mother's favorite, probably because of his less volatile nature.

One day, while Jacob was preparing a meal of lentil soup, Esau came in from the fields hungry and exhausted and asked

Jacob wanted to make it clear that he was entirely in earnest about the bargain, so he asked that the transaction be sealed with an oath. Esau's willingness seems to indicate that he was perfectly satisfied to forfeit his birthright in order to satisfy his hunger.

The deal was made and Esau went his way as though nothing had happened save his having had a good meal. Jacob was confirmed in the possession of the birthright and became the progenitor of the chosen race. But from then on his life was full of danger, for he found himself fleeing from his brother's wrath and was himself the victim of fault and cruel deceit. There was no need for Jacob to cheat his brother to help God fulfill His promise. Perhaps his faith was weak, or he was simply impatient and bought the birthright because he couldn't wait. But the Lord made him wait after all.

CHS Band To Perform At Marietta

The Circleville High School marching band will be one of 29 bands from Ohio and West Virginia competing in the 1970 Band-O-Rama Sept. 12 at Marietta.

The bands, including the colorful, exciting Columbus West Senior High School will take part in an afternoon parade in downtown and then field maneuvers in the evening at Don Drumm Stadium.

Thousands of persons are expected to be attracted to the Pioneer City for the ninth annual event. Band-O-Rama is sponsored by the Marietta Tourist and Convention Bureau.

The winners of the 1969 competition will all be back again this year to defend their laurels, including double winners Belpre High School and Field Local of Mogadore.

As guest band, Columbus West will perform in Muskingum Park after the parade in concert. The concert should begin about 3 p.m.

Band-O-Rama has become one of the most colorful events in southeastern Ohio each early fall. Put it down on your calendar.

St. Philip's Will Discuss New Bishop

A discussion of the candidates for bishop will be held during a coffee hour following the Family Service at St. Philip's Episcopal Church on Sunday morning.

St. Philip's delegates to the special Diocesan Convention will attend a regional meeting Sunday afternoon in Columbus to be briefed on the process of electing a new bishop and a discussion of the candidates.

The Youth Group will meet 7 p.m. Sunday at the church. The liturgy of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated 7:30 p.m. Wednesday with special devotions for the election of the new bishop. The Altar Guild will meet following the service.

Campus Church Sets Program

Campus Church of Christ in Christian Union will present the Edwin Deming family 7:30 p.m. Sunday in a program of speaking and music with special emphasis on missions.

The Demings have been serving on the Texas-Mexican border and recently returned for furlough and deputation. They have been pastoring the churches at Zapata, Texas.

Liquor Chief Fights Beer Price Changes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio Liquor Director Donald Cook has called a recent court action by the state's major breweries "not in the best interests of the general public."

The eight breweries, most of them national concerns, had sought a court injunction of a Liquor Commission ruling against lowering beer prices for less than 180 days.

Cook said lowering prices for a shorter period was a technique used to "gain a foothold in a certain area." He said in the past discounts were often made for competitive purposes, to gain accounts.

Cook said sliding price scales were not in the public interest. He said his department would oppose any further efforts by brewers to lower or raise prices for the wrong reasons.

Cook also dispelled rumors that new liquor licenses would be granted around the state in the near future. The question arose when a statement came out of the director's office announcing the granting of four new licenses.

Cook explained that the ban on new licenses still existed but that the legislature had exempted new hotels and motels from the license ban.

The four new liquor licenses were granted to newly completed motels.

Ohio liquor licenses are allotted according to population and Cook is withholding any new licenses until he can review official census figures.

Rep. Robert E. Levitt of Canton, chairman of the joint legislative committee on campus disorders, faced what he thought was an unusual band of newsmen Thursday afternoon. Levitt said reporters were more interested in the fact that the committee met behind closed doors than in what they did.

Levitt said the group, which is charged with deciding whether a special session of the legislature is needed, reviewed testimony heard in open hearings held around the state, some of them public and some behind closed doors.

Although newsmen did not voice too many objections to the closed sessions held on university campuses, they complained about executive sessions in the Statehouse.

Both the Senate and House have floor rules that assure open committee meetings. Many newsmen fear that more closed sessions may set a precedent for future discussions of controversial issues.

Levitt replied he thought executive sessions were helpful in promoting a frank and open discussion of the issues at hand.

He said that kind of discussion was sometimes not possible at public hearings.

Levitt added he was not sure rules covering legislative meetings during the session applied in this case.

A Republican party poll reportedly shows Democrat John J. Gilligan leading Republican Auditor Roger Cloud in the sweepstakes for governor.

The poll is expected to increase Cloud's political activity.

It was cited as one of the reasons James Duerk, publicity man for Gov. James A. Rhodes, was put on the Republican headquarters staff and assigned to the Cloud campaign.

There have also been reports because of his increasing liberal viewpoints. A Taft supporter in Columbus said Saxbe's ideas on government were closer to those of Metzger than Taft.

The same poll, incidentally, has Rep. Robert Taft Jr. showing a narrow lead over Howard Metzger his Democrat opponent in the U. S. Senate race.

It is doubtful that U. S. Sen. William B. Saxbe will be asked to campaign on behalf of Taft because of his increasing liberal viewpoints.

A Taft supporter in Columbus said Saxbe's ideas on government were closer to those of Metzger than Taft.

Saxbe has made himself available to any Republican wanting him. So far there have been no takers.

Gov. James A. Rhodes is already in demand. He will begin hitting the campaign trail in mid-September.

Big Red Machine Smashes Los Angeles Dodgers, 13-4

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cincinnati's brash Reds prance in to San Diego tonight, needing only five victories in their remaining 16 games to wrap up the crown in the National League West.

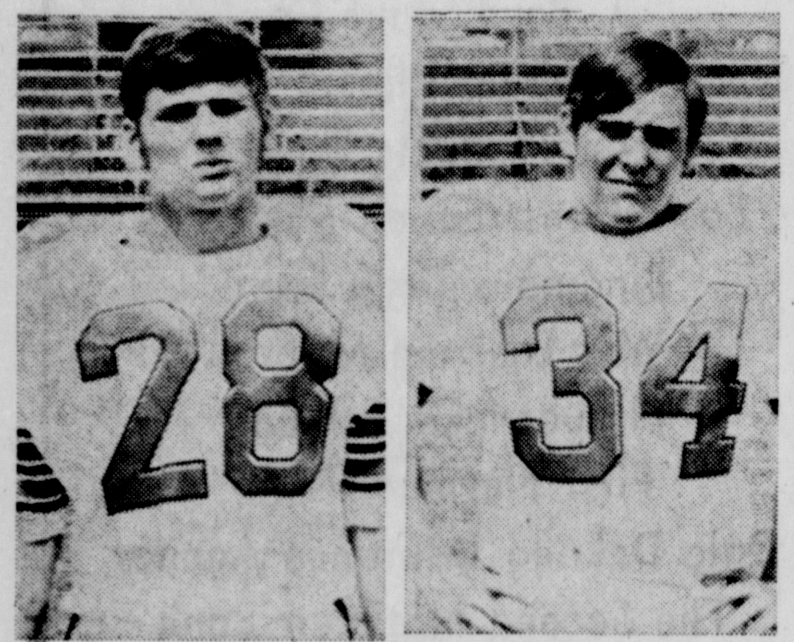

The Los Angeles Dodgers, meanwhile, struggling to cling to second place, engage the hottest team in the league over the weekend, the San Francisco Giants.

Cincinnati reduced its "magic number" to five Thursday night.

Baylor And Missouri Open 1970 College Grid Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Bears of Baylor and the Missouri Tigers kickoff the 1970 college football season tonight, while the armchair fans get their baptism of fire Saturday night when Stanford plays Arkansas.

Missouri, which posted a 9-1 record in 1969 before losing to Penn State in the Orange Bowl, will take a No. 11 ranking in the Associated Press preseason poll into its game against Baylor at St. Louis. The Bears were winless in 10 games last season.

Senior tailback Joe Moore, third in the nation in rushing with 1,312 yards last season, will lead the attack for the Tigers, who appear set at every position except quarterback.

Either Chuck Roper or Mike

Farmer will start tonight in place of the graduated Terry McMillan. A prime target for their passes will be sprint champion Mel Gray.

Left-handed quarterback Lanny Cook, a senior who is considered as much of a runner as a passer, and sophomore tailback Matthew Williams are being counted on to help lead Baylor back.

While fans flock to stadiums throughout the country on Saturday, millions of others will settle down before television sets to watch the Sanford - Arkansas game which will be carried from Little Rock, Ark. by ABC starting at 6 p.m., EDT.

Stanford, ranked 10th, and Arkansas, No. 4, each possess one of the country's top quarterbacks.

Jim Plunkett runs the Stanford offense, and Bill Montgomery guides Arkansas.

Two other members of the Top Ten also will be in action Saturday—No. 9 Nebraska and third-ranked Southern California.

Wake Forest will play at Nebraska in the afternoon, while Jimmy Jones will lead Southern Cal into Bear Bryant country for a battle with 16th-ranked Alabama at night.

Other openers include Utah State at 14th-ranked Kansas State, Duke at No. 14 Florida, 17th-ranked South Carolina at Georgia Tech, 18th-ranked UCLA at Oregon State and William & Mary at No. 20 West Virginia.

Tribe Trounces Washington, 13-4

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Bowie Kuhn won't let the Cleveland Indians and Washington Senators print World Series tickets, so they're passing the time away engraving each other.

While Baltimore and Minnesota, given go-aheads by the commissioner Thursday to begin taking Series ticket orders, continued their countdown to American League division titles, the Indians and Senators went at it again in their struggle for a better-than-last place finish in the East.

A spartan turnout of 2,746 in Cleveland's 76,997-seat Municipal Stadium saw the Indians outslug Washington's Frank Howard, four home runs to two, on the way to a 13-4 victory that sent them one game up on the Senators. Washington had won 5-4 Wednesday night to create a virtual fifth-place deadlock.

The Orioles nipped the New York Yankees 2-1 behind Dave McNally, reducing their magic number to nine for clinching a second successive East Division crown, and the Twins swept a doubleheader from Oakland 6-1 and 7-2 for a magic number of 12 to repeat as West Division champs.

Boston trounced Detroit 14-0 and Kansas City swept a twin bill from Milwaukee 2-0 and 10-2 in O'hair AL action. The Chicago White Sox and California Angels were idle.

Bengals Youngest NFL Team

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals, now in their third year, face their first year in the National Football League with the youngest overall team average experience—2.33 years.

The Bengals moved into the National from the American Football League this year as both leagues combined.

Experience-wise, veteran Ernie Wright, a one-time Ohio State star, has 11 seasons under his belt. Eric Crabtree, a wide receiver, and Pat Matson an offensive guard have five seasons each.

The remainder of the team has either two or three years in professional football, reflecting coach and general manager Paul Brown's emphasis on youth in building his expansion team.

McMillen was expected to head for the University of North Carolina this week to fulfill his letter of intent to attend that school.

His sudden change of plans and his decision to register at Maryland was reported in the Elmira, N.Y., Gazette Thursday.

to have whipped the good clubs," Anderson said. "We've won eight of 12 with the Mets and eight of 12 with the Pirates and 11 of 15 with the Dodgers. The other clubs? Well, let's just say it's good to beat the good ones."

Cincinnati put the game away early, bouncing Joe Moeller for five runs in the first inning, four of them on May's grand slam. It was his third slam of the season and second against the Dodgers.

The Reds piled up three more runs in the seventh and then Bench slugged his three-run home run in the eighth. He's only five short of Ted Kluszewski's all-time Cincinnati record of 49.

Los Angeles managed one run in the second when Tom Haller got the first of his two doubles and Willie Crawford singled him eighth with Bill Russell aboard. Parker now has 98 RBIs and will be shooting to become the first Dodger since 1962 to drive in 100 runs.

Pitching for the Dodgers in the series opener at San Francisco will be Don Sutton (14-11) against the Giants' Juan Marichal (10-10). Gary Nolan (16-6) starts for the Reds against San Diego's Pat Dobson (11-14).

In the National League, Pittsburgh blanked St. Louis 2-0; the New York Mets slugged Philadelphia 3-2 in 14 innings; the Chicago Cubs whipped Montreal 9-3; San Francisco wallopped Houston 11-0; San Diego nudged

Atlanta 3-2 and Cincinnati pasted Los Angeles 13-4.

Howard slammed his 41st and 42nd homers for the Senators, but Ted Uhlaender, Roy Foster, Vada Pinson and John Lowenstein all reached the seats for

Tom McMillen Attends Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Tom McMillen is safely registered and tucked away at the University of Maryland ending his odyssey of indecision.

"I am happy to be here," the 6-foot-11 Mansfield, Pa., high school basketball star said Thursday night. But then he headed for bed to fight a cold and physical and emotional fatigue.

McMillen was expected to head for the University of North Carolina this week to fulfill his letter of intent to attend that school.

His sudden change of plans and his decision to register at Maryland was reported in the Elmira, N.Y., Gazette Thursday.

Willie's Dillies

By BILL MCGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

Schools open again and it's time to watch out for the kids. Look out for them as you drive your car down the streets — as the saying goes "Kids should be seen — not hurt".

Look out for them in the daytime and on Friday nights watch out for them from your seat in the stadium of your choice as they go about the business of representing their schools on the local gridirons.

Our best wishes go out to all the coaches, players, bands, cheerleaders and fans for a good and enjoyable season of pigskin pleasure.

We will be around and hope to see you on these pleasant fall nights at the old ballyard.

Our little gem of information — Pro football is fast becoming a real drawing card attested to by the fact 12,567,501 fans saw the National and American League games in 1969. This was an all-time attendance record — an increase of 8.3 per cent over 1968 and an average of 47,247 fans per game.

Our "fearless" forecast — Head to head or back to back... at the World Series of Golf... our pick is Jack. Circleville's Tigers will be tougher than Grove City's Greyhounds... The Viking of Teays Valley will overpower Bishop Wehrle... Logan Elm's full house backfield will edge Amanda's Aces... Westfall's Mustangs will sock it to the Berne Union Rocket... Arkansas will handle Stanford... Dallas is our bet to ground the New York Jet.

Until next time, have a nice day — be a good sport.

Chicago Bears Meet Vikings

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer
George Halas can get a quick idea tonight which direction his money would have gone when his Chicago Bears close their pre-season schedule against last year's Central Division and National Football League champion Minnesota Vikings.

Halas, the 75-year-old owner of the Bears, for some reason or another felt enough confidence in the Bears that he was willing to lay down $15,000 at Las Vegas odds of 200-1 that they would win the Central Division title this year.

Now, not only are the Vikings a strong favorite to defend their division crown, but the Bears would have to come back from a 1-13 record in 1969 to prove Halas a prophet.

They haven't shown much improvement thus far during the exhibition season, losing their last three games after winning one and tying one.

In the only other game at night, Denver and Boston meet at Salt Lake City, Utah. The Buffalo-Broncos Bay game at Green Bay was set back from tonight to Saturday night. That made eight games Saturday night.

Baltimore plays at Washington, Detroit is at Cincinnati, Cleveland travels to the New York Giants, Miami hosts Atlanta, San Diego plays at New Orleans, Oakland entertains Pittsburgh and San Francisco plays at Los Angeles.

The New York Jets and Dallas will play the television game Sunday night in the Cotton Bowl while Kansas City plays at St. Louis. Houston is at Philadelphia in the afternoon.

Halas will never get his chance to make his bet—he said he would distribute the $3 million winnings among the Vince Lombardi, John V. Mara and Brian Piccolo cancer funds. Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle quickly turned thumbs down on the idea.

"As much as I would like to see the cancer funds get the money, I have to deny permission," Rozelle said.

"I have never bet in my 50 years of pro football," Halas said, "but to me this is a very

Walters Goes To Ashland

Ashland College announced recently that Dick Walters, versatile athlete at Circleville High School, has accepted a grant-in-aid at Ashland.

Walters reports to football practice this week where he hopes to continue his gridiron success. His best success, however, might come in track where he is counted on to be a fine hurdler.

Walters, enroute to six varsity letters, captained the Circleville football team and captured all-league honors at defensive halfback. He went on to win the league crown in the 120-yard high hurdles and 180-yard low hurdles. He was the team's most valuable track member and took the Pickaway County Outstanding Track Athletic Award.

Ashland Track Coach Meade Burnett said, "Dick has excellent potential at Ashland College. A weight and strengthening program can help make him one of our top hurdlers in his first year or two here."

The 6-0 and 173-pounder plans to major in physical education with minors in mathematics and chemistry.

great financial opportunity." With only one touchdown in their last three games, it's doubtful that any of the Bears themselves feel that confident. They still have quarterback problems, with Jack Concannon scheduled to start tonight over Bobby Douglass in the game at Soldier's Field in Chicago.

Middle linebacker Dick Butkus will be missing with an injury, but Gale Sayers says he will be back after returning home where his father died from injuries suffered in an auto accident.

Boston, winless in three pre-season tries, also has quarterback trouble with Mike Taliaferro on the doubtful list with an injured shoulder.

Fullback Jim Nance is suffering from a pulled thigh muscle. Kim Hammond will start at quarterback.

Denver is fresh from a 23-7 victory over the Bears, but will be without middle linebacker John Huard.

Syracuse Chiefs Defeat Jets, 9-5

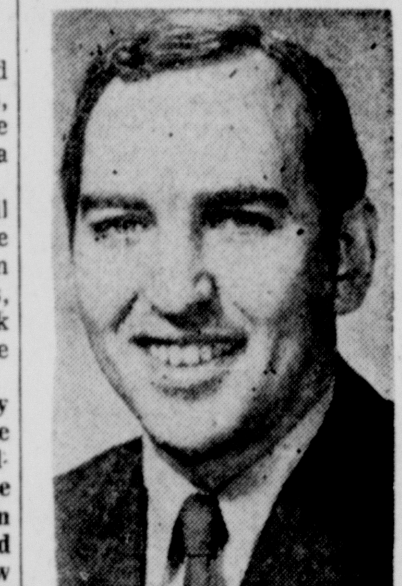

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The pennant-winning Syracuse Chiefs have moved to within one victory of the Governors Cup for winning the International League's final baseball playoffs.

A 9-5 triumph Thursday night over the Columbus Jets gave the Chiefs a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five series, the winner of which will meet Omaha of the American Association in the Junior World Series.

The series moves tonight to Columbus for its remaining games.

Chicago Blasts Montreal Expos, 9-3

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
Ernie Banks and Milt Pappas might not have said it but the pair of veteran Chicago Cubs are perfect examples of the familiar saying: If at first you don't succeed, try, try again.
Banks, thwarted twice attempting to sacrifice bunt, swung away and crashed a three-run homer that snapped a 2-2 tie and sent the Cubs flying to a 9-3 triumph over Montreal Wednesday.
While Pappas, acquired late in June from Atlanta, after failing to win consistently with the Braves and the Cincinnati Reds

The 39-year-old Banks also delivered a run-scoring single in the seventh inning and received a standing ovation when he left for a pinch runner.
"I wish this was the first day of spring training and we were starting the season all over," said Banks, who has only seen limited action in 63 games because of ailing knees.
It was Banks' 12th homer this season and No. 509 lifetime placing the Chicago first baseman only two homers behind Mel Ott's 511 and the eighth spot on the all-time list.
Pappas, 12-7 and 10-5 as a Cub, requested the start with only two days rest. He yielded four hits and left for a pinch hitter with a 7-3 lead.
"I volunteered to start because the chips are down now. I didn't get tired, but I was struggling and it was right to leave when I did," said the 31-year-old right-hander.
Pappas had nine successful seasons with Baltimore in the American League, winning 110 and losing 74 games before he

Reece Morrison
Fills In For Kelly
CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Coaches of the Cleveland Browns plan to take a long look at third-year running back Reece Morrison in Saturday night's final exhibition game in New York against the Giants. Morrison will play in place of Leroy Kelly, who has to miss the game because of Army Reserve duty.
Coaches aren't worried about Kelly missing the game. He carried 28 times for 106 yards last Saturday against the Minnesota Vikings and appeared ready for the regular season opener on Sept. 21 against the New York Jets.
Morrison filled in for Kelly last year, when Kelly was sidelined with a pulled hamstring muscle, and performed well. He gained 131 yards in 24 carries in a game against Washington and ended the season with 301 yards in 60 carries, an average pickup of five yards a carry. Morrison will team with regular fullback Robert "Bo" Scott in the starting lineup.

Oakland Raiders Look Good; May Face Chiefs Again

By ERIC PREWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders begin life as a National Football League team with everything but a Super Bowl trophy to prove they were the best team in the American Football League's last days.
In the last three AFL seasons, the Raiders were 34-4-1. Last year's 12-1-1 record was the best in pro football.

But the 1969 Raiders won the wrong two games with the Kansas City Chiefs, bowing 17-7 in the third and last game and sending the Chiefs on to Super Bowl glory.
Coach John Madden's team should again battle Kansas City for a divisional title. The two teams, along with Denver and

San Diego, make up the Western Division of the American Conference.
The 34-year-old coach, in his second season, has a veteran line-up returning.
Quarterback Darley Lamoni-ca, the AFL's Most Valuable Player last year, has thrown 89 touchdown passes and gained almost 10,000 yards passing in his three seasons with the team. Lamoni-ca completed 101 passes last year to wide receivers Fred Biletnikoff and Warren Wells for an average of 20 yards per completion.
The veteran line, with such standouts as guard Gene Upshaw and center Jim Otto, provided great passing protection.
Charlie Smith, the lead rusher last year with 600 yards, and Hewitt Dixon figure to start again as running backs. But Dixon has been bothered by leg injuries, and the fullback spot may have to be filled by Pete Banaszak or Marv Hubbard.
On defense, the only 1969 starter missing is outside linebacker Chip Oliver, who gave up football to join a hippie commune.
Bill Laskey, part-time starter last season, has moved into Oliver's spot. Gus Otto is a six-year starter at the other outside position.
Dan Donners, the regular middle linebacker, broke his right arm Sunday and will be sidelined at least six weeks.
The defensive front four of Ben Davidson, Tom Keating, Art Thomas and Carleton Oats led a pass rush that spilled opposing quarterbacks 47 times last season.
Safety Dave Grayson and cornerback Willie Brown were All-League players. Nemiah Wilson and George Atkinson were the other starters in the defensive backfield.
The 1969 All-Star baseball game was scheduled for floodlights but it rained the night of the game and was played the next day in Washington.

San Diego Must Improve Defense To Win In '70

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Chargers must improve their defense and combat a rugged schedule in this year's National Football League warfare.
"We've got the offense," says Coach Charlie Waller, "but it can't do it alone."
The offense is built around the passing of John Hadl to classy receivers and the running of Dick Post.
The Chargers, 4-1 after Waller took the coaching reins from General Manager Sid Gillman last year, fell down on pass defense, ranking ninth in that category among 10 teams despite 31 interceptions.
Following Oakland's successful example, the Chargers have injected speed into the defensive secondary.
They traded away veteran Kenny Graham and put tough and fast Jim Tolbert in the safety spot alongside Jim Hill. The young yet experienced cornerbacks are Bobby Howard and Joe Beauchamp.
"We're going to have to cover receivers closely and get to the quarterback with our front four," said Waller, emphasizing quickness on the line.
End Steve DeLong tackled quarterbacks 17 times last year. Others were less successful. Russ Washington's 6-foot-6, 300-pound frame was moved to the offensive line because he couldn't catch quarterbacks as a rookie defensive tackle.
Newcomers include Joe Owens, a quick defensive end obtained from New Orleans and tackle Tom Williams, No. 2 draft choice from University of California at Davis.
Linebacking is solid with Rick Redman backed up by Bob Babich in the middle, flanked by Pete Barnes and Jeff Staggs.
"A b's plus for us is a healthy John Hadl," said Waller. Hadl hurt his arm last year in a pre-season collision with the Los Angeles Rams' Deacon Jones.
At one point in the summer drills the Chargers were without both their All-Pro performers, wide receiver Lance Alworth and guard Walt Sweeney. But both ended brief re-injuries with settlement of contract disputes.
Alworth, who has caught more than 1,000 yards worth of passes a record seven straight years, teams with Gary Garrison to give San Diego dangerous outside receivers.

The Chargers were hurt when Garrison was sidelined four games last year. They were 8-2 in games he played. As insurance, the No. 1 draft choice is Walker Gillette of Richmond.
If the defense jells and the offense gets more help from fullbacks Brad Hubbard and Gene Foster and tight end Willie Frazier, the Chargers may survive the schedule and get out of their third-place rut.

Flirtation Victor In Scioto Feature

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Flirtation and Can't Pretend lived up to their monikers in the featured race at Scioto Downs Thursday night.
After toying with the field most of the way Flirtation emerged from fourth in the stretch to post a 1-length win and pay $6.80, $4.20 and $2.80. Can't Pretend returned $3.80 and $3, while June G. was worth $2.60 for show.
Adam's Apple and Royal Good Friday combined 1-6 for a $26.80 daily double payoff. The 1-5 quinnella returned $24.40. Attendance was 4,183; handle $197,538.
